Enistic Desktop Solution

Save money and energy: auto-powerdown of PCs and peripherals

RESET

Save money on your desktop PCs

The Enistic Desktop Solution is a simple and cost-effective way to ensure that PCs are always turned off when not in use. First, the Desktop Agent software shuts down the PC at the end of the working day if it has accidentally been left switched on. Then, the Powerdown Strip turns off all the associated peripheral equipment - e.g. printer, monitor, speakers. An easy way to save money and energy, that typically pays for itself within just 6-8 months.

Turn your PCs off overnight

PCs consume on average 120W when running. The Desktop Agent activates a computer's hibernate mode, so that the user's work is saved but the PC powers down to less than 10W on average. Ensuring that all of an organisation's PCs are powered down every night will easily save in a year more than the solution costs to install.

What about peripherals?

The Powerdown Strip is very easy to use - plug your PC into the green socket and up to four peripherals into the white sockets. When the PC switches off or to hibernate mode, the peripherals turn off as well.

Central reporting?

As an optional extra, the Desktop Solution can connect to Enistic Energy Manager, which will show you where computers were left running and statistics on both energy use and savings made. It can also be used to control the Desktop Agent on individual or grouped PCs.

Is it hard to install?

No. Install the Powerdown Agent as you would any other screensaver and then simply plug in the Powerdown Strip.

About Enistic

Enistic is a UK-based designer and manufacturer of smart-metering hardware and software solutions. Our solutions have been installed by a range of organisations in both the public and private sectors within the UK and across the globe.

Energy Guardian, our fully managed smart-metering service, helps organisations to reduce their energy spend by an average of 20% and typically has a payback period of under 12 months. Because Energy Guardian is a fully-managed service, we take away your energy management headache and provide you with recommendations that can help you to lower your energy bills and meet your Carbon Reduction Commitments.
